

Blame Engineer For Disastrous Wreck on O. & W.

Rear End Crash Kills Four and Injures Twenty-three—Four Coaches on Train Made Up at Kingston—No Kingston People Killed—Have Been on Train.

Iona Island Station, N. Y., July 6 (AP)—Failure of the engineer of a New York, Ontario & Western express to obey signals set against an open switch was held by the railroad today as cause of a rear end crash with a "switcher" freight yesterday which resulted in the death of four persons and the injury of 23.

Goldberg, Samadovitz and the woman presumably were killed instantly. Dr Kessler died in the West Point hospital several hours after the crash.
Eight were seriously injured and one has seriously hurt. The injured might die, as they were unconscious for hours after the accident, which occurred along the west shore
of the Hudson near Iona Station,
about 42 miles from New York.

Roars Through Open Switch.
With 200 passengers homeward bound from holiday trips, the express roared through the open switch and crashed into the rear of the "switcher." Those killed were riding in a smoker coach which was telescoped to the baggage car ahead. Others throughout the train were injured as they were thrown from their seats or hit with flying glass after the impact.

The express, bound from Kingston to Washawken had crossed a trestle when the crash occurred. The engineer threw on the brakes in a vain attempt to stop the train.

Engineer Passes Caution Signal.

Railroad officials said the engineer fired a Brandt of Middletown, a red caution signal a mile from the switch without slowing down, and that when he tried to stop the train at the danger signal, 1,000 feet from the switch, it was going too fast for him to stop. The conductor of the "switcher" was seconds late in trying to close the tracks. Automatic block signals were tested and found to be working properly, officials said.

Engineer and Fireman Uninjured.

The train had proceeded 100 feet beyond the switch, between two sets of tracks, when Brandt's locomotive plunged into the rear end of a freight car, the last coach of the "switcher." Brandt and his fireman, Seynott, were said to have jumped clear when they saw the wreck was inevitable. They were not injured.

DEVIL COMPACT WAS IMAGINED BY "LAST WITCH"

Police Sent Three Clergymen to Convince Woman She Was Wrong.

Berlin.—Though reproaches continue to be cast upon the old Puritan town of Salem, in Massachusetts, for its trials and executions of alleged witches, it is recalled by the Lokal Anzeiger that there were similar occurrences in this very learned and philosophic Prussian capital at a much later date. It was not until December 13, 1713, that King Frederick William I put an end forever to the trying of women for witchcraft, and it was 15 years later that the last "witch" occupied a cell in the Stadtvogel prison, in this city.

Denounces Self.

The person in question was Dorothea Steppen, the daughter of a miller, who was sent to prison for her wayward and dissolute life. She would have been released after serving a brief sentence had she not suddenly denounced herself as a witch. She declared with intense earnestness that the devil had appeared to her in person, and that she had signed an unholy compact with him, for which he paid her ten ducats, and under which he was to direct her in all manner of evil. She knew, of course, that under the royal decree she could not be burned at the stake, as alleged witches had formerly been, or even tried and punished in any way. So she thought that this was an easy way of obtaining the notoriety which she craved and of annoying the courts, against which she had a grudge. Moreover, she was comfortably lodged and well fed in the prison and did not object to remaining there a while at public expense.

Trying to Convince Her That She Was Innocent.

Police Embarrassed.

The authorities were much embarrassed to determine what to do with her. They could scarcely turn loose by force a self-confessed witch, and she stubbornly declined to improve the opportunities of escape which they gave her. Finally, three clergymen, Jablonski, Steinberg and Vogel, were sent to her by the court, and the unique spectacle was presented of these officers trying to persuade and convince her that she was innocent, while she tried as hard to convince them that she was guilty. For some time they could produce no impression upon her, but at last she grew weary of the game—"bored," she herself expressed it, by their importunities—and confessed her innocence of witchcraft, her only offense being in concocting the story about the devil.

Snake Attacks Boy

High Up in Mountain

Luray, Va.—Without the customary warning a monster black rattlesnake sank its fangs deep into the neck of "June" Thomas, thirteen years old, of Madison county, while he was high up in the mountains clearing ground for a potato patch. Becoming thirsty, the boy went to a spring nearby. The snake was concealed behind a large rock. While lying down to quench his thirst the reptile attacked young Thomas, who ran more than two miles to the home of Mrs. Mary Meadows, an aged woman, who applied a decoction obtained from the bark of certain mountain herbs. The application was soon neutralizing the snake's poison. A searching party, organized by the boy's parents, found him making his way home through the mountains.

A two-acre snake field, where thousands of snakes are located, has been discovered high in the Blue Ridge mountains by George Meadows of the Hensley Church section, who reported that the snakes are concentrated in a field and permit nothing to pass over that section. Thousands of the rattlers, Meadows said, raised their heads from the rocks and charmed in snake music to warn passing trespassers.

A Whole Process

Education means much more than instruction. Education is a whole process, of which instruction is only a part. Education is the orderly development of lives, according to scientific principles, into the fullness of their powers, the realization of all their possibilities, the joy of their world, the utmost rendering in efficiency of their service. It includes the training of powers of thought, feeling, willing and doing; it includes the development of abilities to discern, discriminate, choose, determine, feel and do. It prepares the life for living with other lives; it prepares the whole of the life, developing the higher nature, the life of the spirit, for living in a spiritual universe.—Henry F. Cope, in "Religious Education in the Family."

AMERICAN IDEALS

President Coolidge said: "America is not and must not be a country without ideals. They are useless if they are only visionary. They are only valuable if they are practical." This bank's ideal in banking service is making it efficient, practical and useful to the people.

Her Blighted Life

PERFECTLY mated, gloriously in love, their marriage seemed a perfect match. Then Laura insisted on a gay life in a more fashionable neighborhood. To humor her, Peter yielded, and life for Laura really began.

At first it all seemed so innocently amusing—the afternoon bridge parties, the cigarettes and cocktails, the "modern wives" she met, with their fascinating, idle male companions. Then one day Laura met David Macclery. Suave, handsome, unscrupulously clever, he was wonderfully attractive to women.

If only Laura had listened to the sharp warnings of her instinct, what suffering, what horror, she might have escaped. But once caught in the titanic whirlpool of her own mad folly, she seemed utterly lost. Swiftly, irresistibly, the treacherous current of events swept her along, the helpless victim of a fate that plays no favorites. The story of Laura's thrilling, heart-rending experience appears with sixteen other absorbing features in August True Story Magazine. Its title, "My Wild Ride," gives not even the faintest conception of the astounding, breath-taking nature of this great epic narrative. Don't miss it.

Real Life Stories That Fascinate and Thrill

WHAT is more fascinating, more thrilling, than the adventure and romance of real life? What could be more powerfully moving than the frank records of human experience?

Every month men and women who have challenged life, who have passed through its fires, bare the most intimate secrets of their hearts in True Story Magazine. It is such stories that show us men and women as they really are, with all their strengths and weaknesses, their aspirations and their sorrows, their capacities for courage, self-sacrifice and devotion in the face of the most desperate odds.

In the August issue, for example, there are seventeen powerfully dramatic features—none of which you can afford to miss. This issue is now on sale at all newsstands—price only a quarter. Get your copy today.

Byrd Receives Legion of Honor

Premier Poincaré Presents American Commander With Corded Honor in Presence of His Three Companions—Poincaré Lauds Achievement.

Paris, July 6 (AP).—Premier Poincaré planned the decoration of the Legion of Honor on the breast of Commander Byrd today. The ceremony took place at the Ministry of Finance, in the presence of Sheldon Whitehouse, American charge d'affaires, Captain White, the naval attaché, and H. A. Gibbons, personal representative of Rodman Wanamaker, who sponsored the America's flight across the Atlantic.

The visit of Commander Byrd and his three flight companions to the premier was brief, for M. Poincaré had to hurry away for the opening of the chamber.

The premier congratulated the aviators on their courage and endurance and the great scientific success of their exploit. Then he formally pinned the Legion of Honor cross on Commander Byrd's breast and gave the aviators the traditional embrace. The commander thanked him simply, and expressed in behalf of his comrades and himself deep appreciation of the warmhearted welcome they had been accorded in France and the sympathetic interest with which the French people had followed the flight, especially the last few hours of the early morning battle with the fog.

The aviators' visit to M. Poincaré was not widely heralded. There was only a small crowd in front of the entrance of the ministry when they arrived, but it was an enthusiastic one. The fliers responded to the cheers by bowing and tipping their hats.

May Visit England.

Paris, July 6 (AP).—The crew of the transatlantic monoplane America probably will visit England before returning to the United States. Commander Byrd indicated in addressing the members of the Anglo-American Press Association at a luncheon given in honor of the aviators today.

Plans for their return to the United States were still undecided, he said. It seems likely, however, that they will sail on the Leviathan next Tuesday.

Commander Byrd, in reply to a toast in his honor, told the newspapermen that all credit for the success of the flight was due his comrades.

Bingham Told Strange Tales

Told Judge McKenzie He Had Been in Secret Service Since He Was Three Years Old—Jailed for 30 Days for Assaulting Deputy Sheriff Nehr.

This morning Thomas Bingham, who said he had been working the past few weeks picking fruit in Ulster county, wandered into Nehr's garage in Port Ewen, and when he wanted to enter the house he was ordered out by Deputy Sheriff Ross Nehr. In the argument that followed, Nehr placed him under arrest on a charge of assault in the third degree.

Later in the day Bingham was arraigned before Judge Henry E. McKenzie and told a number of strange tales. He informed the judge he was a Secret Service man and had been engaged at that work since he was three years old.

"How long is that?" asked the court.

"About 6,700 years," replied Bingham seriously.

Bingham also said that he knew General Pershing and that the general had worked under him.

After listening to Bingham's conversation, Judge McKenzie sentenced him to thirty days in the county jail to give the county physician a chance to observe Bingham's mental condition.

The zoning board of appeals held its regular session at the Municipal Building on Tuesday. There being no appeals from the decision of the board of public works, the meeting was adjourned to the first Tuesday in September.

Some question has arisen whether the Tuberculosis Hospital could be constructed on Golden Hill without the permission of the board of public works. The conclusion seems to be that the only building which can be erected in this city without the permission of the board of public works or the zoning board of appeals is the Senate House Museum, which is to be constructed under a special act of the Legislature upon property owned by the state.

A recent decision of the court of appeals holds that the zoning board of appeals has the most extensive jurisdiction and power, and that its decisions will not be reviewed by the courts.

TEN COTTAGES AT ORANGE LAKE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Swept by a fire which broke out shortly before 1 o'clock Tuesday morning, ten cottages on the south-eastern shore of Orange Lake adjacent to Orange Lake Park near Newburgh, were destroyed by fire, most of them with their contents. Naval Conference At Crucial Stage

British Demand for 600,000 Cruiser Tonnage Threatens Negotiations at Geneva—Japan and United States Both Desire a Lower Figure.

Geneva, July 6 (AP).—Crucial, serious and precipitous were some of the words used today in connection with the status of the three-power naval limitation conference as regards cruisers. Great Britain is mentioned as the country on which depends whether there is to be a definite break in the deliberations or a continuation toward a treaty on the strength of auxiliary war craft, the objective of the conference.

The question is raised whether Great Britain will recede from her original demand for something slightly under 600,000 tons. The American spokesman had indicated that his country would continue to make efforts to have the cruiser limitation figure set at well under 400,000 tons, which is 100,000 tons more than originally embodied in the United States proposal.

W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the British Admiralty, asked, "Do you consider the chances for the success of the conference better now than on the first day?" replied: "The prospects on the first day were not as good as I had hoped, but I will be greatly disappointed if we do not find some way to agree." He again called attention to the peculiar maritime position of the British Empire which laid it open to constant danger from cutting off of food supplies.

There has been a hint that the conference might adjourn upon reaching agreement on the question of destroyers and submarine, leaving the cruiser problem in abeyance, but it was intimated in American circles that the American delegation could see little use in merely settling these two questions. The United States, it was argued, was weak in cruisers, having many antiquated ships, although it had strength in submarines and destroyers. For this reason it was contended, the United States would not benefit by an accord on those units leaving the problem of cruisers undecided.

In their anxiety to keep the total cruiser tonnage at a low figure, the Americans seemingly have the support of the Japanese, who are apparently disturbed over the possibility of raising the cruiser figures to meet the wishes of the British.

Members Help in Building Church

Members of the congregation of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church are busy evening after week-end excavating for the foundation of the new church which will be erected on the site of the old frame structure which was damaged by fire. Each evening a number of the men of the church gather and carry on the work. In doing much of this work themselves they hope to keep down the construction costs. The work is being done under the direction of the trustees of the church.

Following the fire which damaged the 40-year-old building, the members of the congregation met each evening and razed the building which was in such bad condition as to make repairs impossible. In tearing down the building they found the supporting timbers back of the pulpit nearly rotted away and in a dangerous condition. Some of the material which may be used in the new building was salvaged.

Harry Gargrell, 35 years old, of New York city, who was found wandering around the Strand and unable to give a good account of himself on Tuesday afternoon, was given an opportunity to return to New York today by Judge Shufeldt in prison. Gargrell had been picked up by Officer Rosdell.

Six men were more or less injured Saturday afternoon when a truck driven by Gordon Foster of Madawaska, employed by the Schoenitz Construction Company of Saurertles, went off the road through a wire fence and down a twenty-five foot embankment three miles northwest of Catkill on the Fairville road. The truck turned over. Foster sustained a broken rib. The others injured were Thomas Corne, broken leg taken to Benedictine Hospital, James M. Ben, broken arm, taken to Benedictine Hospital, Frank Torres, leg and arm bruised, King Flores, arm bruised, Lewis Vandell, sprain and arm bruised, James B. Arthur, of Green county investigated the accident.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 6, 1927.

Searches without warrant have been allowed to pass, but "third degree" methods to extort evidence cause too much outcry, and Heise, the New York enforcement officer who was brought into court for this offense, has been suspended without pay.

Sacco and Vanzetti have been granted a respite of thirty days to give the Governor of Massachusetts "time to review 7,000 pages of testimony and see 200 witnesses." Doubtless the condemned men are hoping that Governor Fuller is not as fast a worker as this 30-day program would imply.

It appears to be widely expected that it will be impossible to enforce New York City's new tenement house law forbidding cooking in apartments. It is even predicted that "there will be 'bootleg cooking' in all the apartment houses to which the law applies." But will it not be easier to "smell out" bootlegging of this sort than the kind usually associated with the term?

Senator Borah says he thinks that "the poorest business man which this country has yet produced is the Government" and, though he confesses that he doesn't know exactly where to find the "true line of demarcation between business and Government, individual responsibility and public control," he warns those in control of oil and coal and power that if they do not themselves work out sound and fair policies, the Government will have to intervene and "go as far as is necessary." Obviously the problem is a big one, and past blunders seem to promise some few more of them before a solution is achieved.

ARE WE "SOWING THE WIND?"

We find the following quoted from a recent address of the Attorney General of the United States before the Pennsylvania Bar Association:

When intelligent educated men hold up to ridicule the rules for its conduct which society makes, intimate and by suggestion advise that such rules ought to be violated; ridicule and revile, as undesirable members of the community, men sworn to defend and enforce its rules; devote their intelligence, wit and resources to making crime and criminals interesting and attractive, why is it not to be expected that the thoughtless, the unfortunate, the ignorant, the vicious will try and get rid of the oppressors of the criminal, in any way by any means, any violence that will be most effective? Day by day, because some one pays for the doing of it, and because the great body of law-abiding citizens is complaisant, and says nothing to show its disapproval, flippant, feeble writers, publishers, soap box orators and cabaret performers sow the wind and society reaps it all in whirlwinds which blast and destroy.

This is a surprising utterance. It may be more or less accurate as a description of the attitude of a large part of the public toward a single unpopular law, but can it be true that such is the attitude of any part of the reputable public toward law in general? Let us hope that it is not, and that in a pessimistic mood the Attorney General has been led into extravagance of statement.

LINDERBERG AND MAIN STREET.

Stclair Lewis has been called to answer for his satirical disparagement of Western small town folk on the ground that both young Lindbergh and his mother are products of "Main Street." Here, as in all the previous acclaim, there can be found no mention of the daring young aviator's father, although he was a lawyer and Congressman of parts. The mother alone is given credit for the son, the father being left out of the picture as in no way concerned. Mr. Lewis might answer that this, taken by itself, is a recognizable characteristic of "Main Street" and that young Lindbergh's modesty is convincing proof that he is not a typical product of either the Middle West or of America in general.

And it would be true enough that modesty is not much in evidence among us, even though it may be theoretically expected. The modest man is pretty generally regarded as an unfortunately handicapped individual who can never hope to become a first-rate salesman or a go-getter of any sort, and is likely to be swept aside or lost in the shuffle wherein only those who know how to toot their own horn may be expected to come out on top. If Sinclair Lewis answers his critics in this connection, he is likely to say even more than this. He may contend not only that young Lindbergh is an unaccountable accident but that the patron saint of the Middle West, and of the whole United States perhaps, is not George Washington, but Barnum.

UNCLE SAM'S SLEUTHS.

The Canadian Royal Northwest Mounted Police have long enjoyed fame and glory for their success in "getting their men." Now it develops that we have some pretty successful sleuths in this country who are less spectacular but quite as competent as the heroes of the north woods. These men are the United States Postal Inspectors. With little publicity, show or fuss they accomplish work equal to any other police force in the world. They were chiefly responsible for the capture, conviction and execution of Gerald Chapman.

The latest of their successful jobs was the capture of the D'Autremont brothers who held up a mail train in Oregon four years ago, brutally killing four of the train crew at the time. In the years since their crime these men had changed their names and occupations, removed to distant localities and apparently lost themselves utterly from pursuit. One had joined the army under an assumed name, and was found in the Philippines. Another was married, and his wife had no suspicion of his real identity. The police, after a big hue and cry at the time of the crime, had given up the chase. The trail was cold. The crime itself seemed forgotten. But the postal inspectors had not given up the search. Late this spring they succeeded in bringing the three brothers to justice. Perhaps their methods are not well suited to a movie thriller, but we wish they were at least adaptable to the pursuit of the gunmen and bandits who infest our big cities. Police departments everywhere should take lessons from Uncle Sam's postal inspectors.

TUBERCULOSIS DECREASING. CANCER INCREASING.

In 1850 the deaths from cancer numbered 300 per million population. In 1900 it had risen to 800, and in 1925 it had gone up to 1,336.

In giving these figures, Sir Berkeley Moynihan compares them with those of tuberculosis. Forty years ago the death rate from tuberculosis was about five times that of cancer. Six years ago the two had drawn level, and today the cancer death rate was about one-third greater than the death rate from tuberculosis.

In the last twenty years the death rate from all ailments had fallen 32 per cent; the infant death rate had fallen 45 per cent; the tuberculosis death rate 38 per cent. What about cancer? Cancer death rate had increased 20 per cent.

Now these startling figures must be faced squarely.

While it is comforting to be reducing tuberculosis, and most gratifying to be saving so many babies, the loss of mature useful men and women in the prime of life from cancer, should awaken everyone to its ravages.

And the best means of fighting it are the very methods now in use. That is having skilled research men in laboratories, all over the world, spend their lives trying to find out all they can about cancer, its prevention, and if possible the cause and cure. And as new facts are learned and old errors corrected, they are given at once to the public.

Are the public interested? There is no question but that folks at or approaching middle age are thinking more about cancer.

And this is only what should be expected when we remember that one person in seven, over the age of thirty, now dies of cancer.

It is also pointed out that if a person has a lump of any kind on his body he should have it investigated. Likewise with little fissures or cracks on the skin or mucous membrane that will not heal.

It has been definitely proven that cancer is not hereditary, but the question of certain foods as possible causes of cancer has not been settled as yet.

Although cancer is our great scourge, it is encouraging at least to know that the profession realizes this. Fortunately also many public spirited men are giving of their wealth to help find out the cause of this great scourge of mankind.

Night Baseball Coming

"Five years ago in the world's series between the New York Giants and Yankees it cost the owners of the two clubs $100,000 to call a game because of darkness," says Billy Evans, big league umpire in a magazine article. Enraged fans protested the umpire's ruling at the end of the tenth inning with the score a tie and Commissioner Landis ordered the whole receipts of the day turned over to charity. "Just think how soft it would have been if the umpire had needed only to call the groundkeeper and say 'Let there be light.' I have no doubt that in a short time lights for outdoor sports will have extended the playtime of the nation until long after sundown. Baseball at night will offer a new venture that should prove highly successful."

"High Grade But Not High Priced"

Are You Satisfied with What Lies Beyond Your Threshold?

Most women aren't. Almost all of them have a dream picture in the back of their minds of what they want their home to look like. And they promise themselves that just as soon as the house is paid for, or the children are through school, or the insurance premiums aren't so heavy, they are going to have this kind of furniture. They forget that one never gets things by delay and they don't know how easy it is to buy one fine piece of furniture at a time or how rapidly one's stock of nice things increases by this method.

Bar Auto Traffic From West Point

Eighty Per Cent Is Through Traffic Which Seriously Interferes With Instruction of Cadets—Excursions Also Curtailed—Proper Provision for Visitors.

West Point, N. Y., July 6.—With the approval of the War Department, Lieutenant Colonel Campbell B. Hodges, acting superintendent of the Military Academy during the illness of General Stewart, has promulgated orders effective on Sunday morning, July 10, drastically revising the traffic regulations on the military reservation here. Effective that date all through traffic will not be allowed to enter the Post but must continue on the main state highway, turning off at the town of Highland Falls immediately south of the Post, or, coming north, continuing on the Storm King Highway to Highland Falls. Provisions have been made to take care of those desiring to enter the Post in order to see friends or witness cadet ceremonies.

The new traffic regulations have been found absolutely necessary owing to the vastly increased amount of automobile traffic. On a Saturday, Sunday or holiday, thousands of cars have passed through West Point, interfering seriously with the instruction of cadets. This interference is greatly increased because of the fact there is so little flat space here on the reservation for the use of cadets. Parking has been found an impossibility due to narrow roads and to the small amount of parking space available.

It has been proved time and again that the great amount of traffic, the jamming parking conditions, and the thousands of visitors, have all caused an encroachment upon cadet activities. This is caused chiefly by the through traffic which constitutes fully eighty per cent of all West Point traffic. For these and other reasons the authorities of the Military Academy have been forced to put into effect these new regulations.

Reservation Not a Play Ground.

It has also been found necessary to curtail the landing of excursion parties from steamers, and to take steps to prevent the use of the Military Academy reservation as a play ground by the great number of people in this vicinity during the summer months. Under them, all through traffic bound for points beyond West Point in either direction, will be forbidden access to the reservation. All traffic, either north or south, will be required to stay on the main state road which runs outside the military reservation. Traffic will be required to turn off at the "silent policeman" at Parry's corner in the business district of the town of Highland Falls, immediately south of the Post, thus swinging on to the Storm King Road; or, coming from the north, to continue south along the Storm King Road to the town of Highland Falls rather than turn in at the north gate of the post.

Caring for Visitors.

In either case, definite provisions have been made to handle the small percentage of traffic which will be concerned with visiting the post, people on the post, cadet ceremonies, or cadet athletics. These cases will be cared for at either entrance to the post, definite arrangements having been made to issue various types of permits dependent upon the desires and objects of the visitors.

It is realized, of course, that many people visit West Point in order to see the post, buildings and cadets and to witness cadet ceremonies and other cadet activities. For these, the authorities will do their utmost towards securing for them the same privileges which have always existed here. But for the great mass of traffic—the eighty per cent which constitutes the through traffic, which goes through the post simply to get somewhere else—that traffic, either north or south bound, will be compelled, beginning July 10, to proceed by the main state road, which, from Highland Falls, south of West Point, to the north gate of the reservation, is one-fifth of a mile shorter than the road through West Point itself.

Local Auto Club Asks Victims' Aid

The Automobile Club of Ulster County in conjunction with The Lackawanna Motor Club of Scranton, Pa., is waging a campaign to rid the highways leading into the city of Scranton and Dunmore of certain unscrupulous constables. The clubs have received numerous complaints that New York and New Jersey motorists have been stopped on the outskirts of Dunmore and Scranton because of alleged infractions of the law and mulcted of various sums of money on the highway and permitted to proceed after a monetary settlement with such constables. The clubs are very eager to get into communication with motorists throughout the country, and particularly in New York and New Jersey, who have been victimized by such illegal practices, as it is the desire of this organization to render the Lackawanna Trail between Stroudsburg and Binghamton in the vicinity of Scranton and Dunmore one hundred per cent safe from such practices.

The clubs will appreciate anybody thusly victimized getting into communication with The Automobile Club of Ulster County or The Lackawanna Motor Club, 429 Wyoming avenue, giving full particulars of the various transactions and assure them that their complaints will receive prompt attention.

ON FASHIONS

Diagonal Lines Continue to Impress Students of Style, and Flares Cannot be Frowned Down, Even Though They Are Often Only Incidental.

New York.—Any conversation concerning styles invariably leads up to a rather heated discussion as to the importance of the flare. There are "ayes" and "noes" in the debate over whether the flare will dominate for fall. It may not dominate, but it cannot be ignored.

Paris reports are largely concerned with draperies in conjunction with circular movements. There are many side treatments and irregularities, and a general freedom of silhouette due to flounces and other delightful effects. Fringes continue to be liked as well as flounces and tiers.

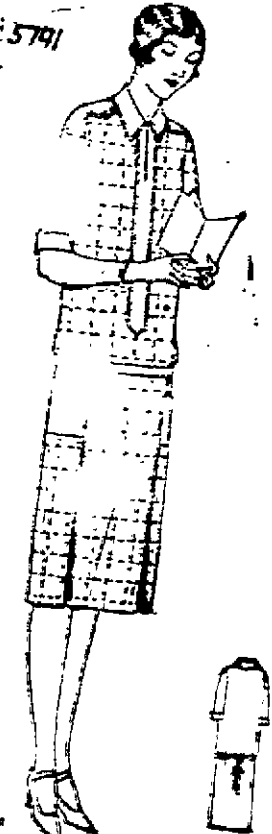

A Large Crystal Buckle Holds the Side Fullness of a Peplum Which is Finished With a Fine Pleated Ruffle on a Dress of Black Crepe Satin. The Collar and Flaring Cuffs Are of Shaded Blue Corded Material Edged With Fagoting.

There are some rather sensational developments in beaded effects, especially those from Worth, who stimulates jeweled effects in embroideries that sometimes entirely cover the bodice. This type of thing naturally is restricted to evening wear.

Crepe satin is cited as of fabric importance for many purposes. Satin-finished crepes are being used for sports wear, and for evening wear as well, which is not extraordinary when one considers that dull crepes shared a similar fate.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

An Attractive Morning Frock.

5741. Flared gingham and white linings are here combined. This model will also look well in striped broadcloth together with plain broadcloth or corded.

The pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34 and 36 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size will require 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material together with 1/2 yard of contrasting material for facing on collar, cuffs and string girdle and for pockets. The width of the dress at the lower edge with pleats extended is 3 1/2 yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y.

Fashion Book Notice. Send 15c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date Spring and Summer 1927 Book of Fashions showing color plates, and containing 100 designs of ladies' shoes and children's patterns, a complete and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some plates for the reader (illustrating 30 of the various styles in dressmaking), all valuable hints on the dressmaker.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

The thoughtful mother of today who knows that her child is entirely at her mercy as to care and feeding, will give much thought to his food.

She knows, as she has been repeatedly told, that she should not buy a pound of meat until she has purchased a quart of milk daily for each child in her family.

Children are far more restricted in their diet than are grownups, and they are more dependent upon special foods. We all need a balanced diet to produce the highest efficiency, but the food of the growing child must do more than that. He is building bone and muscle, for this reason he should have a larger proportion of body-building foods than adults.

Milk is the most important, eggs, butter, cream, well-cooked cereals with top milk, are very important to the child's diet. Milk is the ideal food, as it contains the elements needed to promote growth. As it lacks iron, the child should be supplied with these in such vegetables as spinach, beet greens and carrots.

As the child grows and becomes more active, other foods such as starchy foods are added, which supply energy.

When milk itself seems unpleasant it may be given him in soups, custards, junket, ice cream and other milk dishes.

The older members of the family may be undernourished on milk, but never let the children want for it.

Dishes of milk, fish, poultry and eggs with occasional meat and meat substitutes form the most important group of foods in the well-balanced ration. Then come the cereals, bread; then fats, of which butter is the most important. Do not give the children foods fried in fat, they are hard for the best of digestions. Fruit and vegetables should be given freely, then simple sweets such as dried fruits, honey, and pure candies. When feeding children, remember to give candy only at the close of a meal, never before it.

Keeps you free from perspiration odor even in hottest weather

[This hygienic toilet soap purifies pores]

A FAST exciting game . . . packed grandstands . . . a warm sweltering day. Perspiration . . . worse yet . . . odor!

Yet there's no excuse for offending. We can't help perspiring—it's natural. But now we can avoid the unpleasant odor of perspiration—so easily!

Simply change to Lifebuoy—a toilet soap so refreshing that millions bathe with it every day. Its purifying lather gives lasting freedom from perspiration odor—keeps the body fresh—even in hottest weather.

Healthy complexions, too

A healthy skin is a clear, fresh, glowing skin. And just as Lifebuoy's antiseptic lather purifies body pores, so does it purify face pores, keeping complexions soft, smooth and healthy.

Better still, this same purifying lather helps protect against 27 germ diseases which hands may carry home. It removes germs, as well as dirt.

Note its clean, hygienic scent

Lifebuoy is so different from other toilet and bath soaps that even its scent is different. Not a perfume, but a clean, hygienic scent which tells you Lifebuoy gives greater protection.

Even before you've finished your first cake, you'll learn to love this cleanest of all soap scents, which quickly evaporates after rinsing.

Without its antiseptic, Lifebuoy would still be a wonderful toilet soap—but you wouldn't get the added protection.

No added cost for extra safety

Lifebuoy assures greatest health protection and freedom from perspiration odor—yet costs no more, probably less, than the toilet soap you now use. Lifebuoy is orange-red, a big generous cake. Get some today wherever soap is sold.

Study Geography, Matters Before
Urges Educator The Surrogate

Seattle, Wash., July 3 (AP).—The progress of civilization through the study of geography was predicted by Ernest E. Holmes of the State Normal School at Lewiston, Idaho, in an address today before the National Council of Geography Teachers of the National Education Association.

"Human progress has continued down through the ages at a rapidly increasing rate," he said, "as man has better understood and made use of the conditions in which he lived. Geography, defined as the study and interpretation of the relationship existing between environmental conditions and life, particularly man's life, touches nearly every phase of human progress."

"All questions which involve our relations to other powers that like ourselves have patriotic pride and a means to defend their honor have a geographical setting. It is the paramount duty of all citizens who wish to see our civilization preserved and advanced, to know the peoples about them, their problems, their resources, their possibilities and their spirit—in short, the political and geographic as well as the historic and economic bases of their life."

Married Woman's Career

Can the married woman keep up outside work and run her home properly at the same time? A 2 to 5 o'clock job, combined with home-making and housekeeping, is certainly too much to ask of any woman. If there are children to be looked after, all sorts of complications arise: there must be a good, faithful and intelligent servant, and every housekeeper knows that the species is nearly extinct. On the children must be sent to a day nursery or to school at an early age. Such institutions are poor substitutes for a happy home life. The regular job, then, is out so far as wives and mothers of the middle and lower classes are concerned. We must look elsewhere for the married woman's career, and we find it in a diversity of interests that do not demand the whole of an individual's time in social work in writing, in teaching, in little theater movements, or in music.—The Medical Observer.

Speed Boats
Break Down

New York, July 6 (AP).—Heaten in their attempt to outrace time in dashes down the Hudson river in high speed motorboats, William J.
Connors, Sr., 70, and his 28 year old wife are planning another effort to lift the record held by Richard Hoyt's "Teaser" for the Albany to New York trip.
Mrs. Connors piloted her craft,
"Miss Okechobee", at a mile a minute clip yesterday until a broken oil pipe forced her out 37 miles from the starting point. She had covered that distance in exactly 37 minutes.
Mr. Connors's 1,900 horsepower cruiser, W. J. Connors III, had to quit 35 miles from New York when an engine cylinder cracked.
Both boats finished their trips, but far behind the record time of 1 hour, 38 minutes for the 138 mile run.

Modernists Show
Art at Woodstock

Art Productions of Conservative
Group Missing, But Modern School
Displays Its Paintings, Drawings, Etchings and Water Colors in Elaborate Exhibition.

(By F. Gardner Clough)

The Woodstock Art Association
opened its second show of the season on Saturday, July 2. This exhibit is a general one, including paintings, sculpture and pottery. It will remain open to the public until July 26.

The somewhat general feeling that the exhibit of last month fell far short of what was expected from the Woodstock artists has now been forgotten. Those who attended the present exhibit on the opening days from Kingston, Woodstock and vicinity were unanimous in declaring the showing to be gay, representative and prolific.

As for first impressions, one cannot fail but cheer the large array of brightly colored paintings assembled, sixty-five on the four walls of the main gallery room. In a smaller room are some fifty drawings, etch-ings, water colors. Ten pieces of sculpture and twenty pieces of pottery are also included in the exhibition. About one hundred fifty pieces of art! The summer season at Woodstock is under way at last!
Numbers are concrete, and practically all the colony artists are represented. It is an exhibit that the public should not miss.

The complete show is avowedly
modern; but modern in a healthy way. Whatever else critics may deny, modernity in art does show vigor, action, independence on the part of the artists. Modern art is made important by the controversial elements introduced. The modern artist lays himself open to attack;
he frankly gives himself to experiment; he blazes new paths; he challenges the public.

This exhibition proves that the artists of Woodstock are no longer dilettanti; they are doing things.
Some have obviously copied teachers; some reflect European influences; others are students, but all have been working, which is something!

What will one see in this show?
Birge Harrison, honorary president of the association, has honored the gallery with one of his inimitable, soft, pleasing landscapes. With paintstaking method, his work shows a lifetime experience, a style almost his own. Almost hung alongside is a painting of a vigorous skyscraper
by A. Wiltz, group, which gives evidence of the same sort of painting draftsmanship, yet in color differs greatly. Wiltz has produced remarkable shades and shadows with bright color, his cityscapes are far from offensive, albeit too bold to produce much sentiment in the onlooker.

We see a cold, low-keyed snowscape by Klitgaard, perhaps a local subject, yet given an artistic glamor which must result from the artist's abstract style. Alongside is one of Charles Rosen's hot, landscapes;
heavy colors strangely at odds with mathematical forms. Two widely different paintings.

John Carroll's nude subject will arouse controversy. Done in a low, lifeless key, his figure most assuredly lacks any appeal to the aesthetic or emotional senses, and by some will be judged accordingly. "A Town in Mississippi" is the title of an interesting painting by Hermon More,
in which the artist has achieved a remarkable lighting with colors heavy and almost dull.

Another sensation in this exhibit is Henry Mattson's self portrait. This painting is boldly labelled "We,"
after the timely Lindbergh pronoun.
And by it Mattson goes sailing, or flying, right into the heart of the exhibit and before the eyes of the visitor who faces a strong, unforgettable portrait. S. S. McDermott shows a "Siberian Singer," a delicately painted portrait with hor-monious color combinations of dress and face. A European landscape by C. E. Linden is done in a new color for this artist who usually works in purples and blues.

There are many other paintings to challenge the attention. Julian Bloch has a portrait of William Fisher, literary celebrity. The face is none too strong, but it is saved by being a likeness. Orville Peets, one time Woodstocker, has returned this season and shows an excellent etching, Nan Mason from Bearville shows "Our Barns," a landscape of honest style.

In sculpture are two pieces by A.
Archipenko, "Gilded Figure" in bronze, and his "Glorification of Beauty," a silver piece that has been reproduced in art journals and is worth going miles to see. Hannah Small shows a wood carving, A head "mask" by Paul Penco, a "Redstone figure" by Myra N. Carr and a "Head of Old Man" by Ruskin Wil-hams are all of interest, especially the latter which is simple, rugged and leaves a lasting impression on one's mind.

There are drawings by Mary D.
Smith, E. Fene, R. Tandler, Blom-
shield, Rosella Hartman, F. Vinton Brown has a collection of her miniatures, delicate, conservative and striking portraits. Not to be overlooked is the pottery by Carl Williams of Mastic, R.I. make.
His pieces combine a color and design that are unique and original.
His pottery easily takes first place with any shown at the Woodstock colony exhibit year after year.

This prolific display of paintings
includes many still life subjects.
There are flowers, inanimate objects

made animate by color and form, portraits, landscapes. Students are represented. Canvases are small and large. A few more women are shown than heretofore, including
Margaret Chaplin, Flo DeVoe, Cecile
Barrere, Edith Roberts, E. McEvoy,
Polly Eddy, Rosella Hartman, Pete
Mearns, F. B. Cramer, C. Speare and Nan Mason. Their work is excellent;
space forbids separate comment.
Two Woodstockers, known at home and abroad as leaders of the conservative and modern groups, respectively, are John F. Carlson and Henry McFee. Both are missing from this show in the Woodstock gallery. Aside from these two men, the association has assembled a representative exhibit for their second general show. Visitors will find a variety of styles, an assortment of subjects, colors aplenty, interest gallery in the paintings shown. If one dare not suggest that there are pictures worth purchase, at least it can truthfully be said that for a gallery show, this exhibit is typically a Woodstock one and worth serious interest.

An Intellectual is a fellow who knows all about everything except work.
